P.C.
. Heard. We do not find any reson as to why this Court should grant stay to the effect and operation of the decree, in so as it relates to the matter of alimony, which has been allowed by Family Court, which in our view does not appear to be unreasonable and unjust. Further, it has come on record that at one stage the applicant had agreed to pay the amount of Rs. One lakh as permanent alimony to the respondnet-wife and her children, who are three in numbers and therefore, the application is rejected. The arrears of maintenance and litigation expenses deposited by the husband can be withdrawn by the wife.
